Convention of Jews at Syracuse

The New York State Federation of Young Men's Hebrew and kindred associations will hold their annual convention at Syracuse on August 30, 31 and September 1. It is expected the men and women from all over the state will assemble there in the largest numbers in the history of these events, which were started eight years ago.

Leon Brounstein, chairman of the convention, announces the program will be an attractive one and will include addresses by some of the most prominent business and professional men of the country.

Sunday evening, August 31, there will be a mass meeting held at the Temple Society of Concord. Efforts are being made to secure Rabbi Stephen S. Wise as principal speaker for this occasion, and present indications are that he will attend. Emanuel Bronner, president of the Society of Concord, will preside at the meeting. The invocation will be given by Rabbi Benjamin Friedman, and there will be a message offered by a member of the Jewish Welfare Board.

Open house will be held by the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. These will supply programs of music, dancing and refreshments. Sunday morning will be devoted to registration of delegates and visitors. The convention will open at 10.30, when the chief business will be the appointment of committees and the submission of reports by the president and secretary. At 4.40 o'clock in the afternoon the visitors will be taken for auto rides by the Syracuse committee and at 6.30 supper will be served guests of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. in the ball room of the Syracuse Hall.

The final convention session will be held Monday morning when committees will report, new business transacted and officers for the year chosen. At 2 o'clock there will be a track and field meet at the Archbold Stadium. Participating in the various events will be teams from Buffalo, Rochester, Elmira, Binghamton, Syracuse, Troy, Albany, Gloversville, Schenectady, Hudson, Kingston, Ulster, Saratoga Springs.

The Syracuse Y. M. H. A. has hung up a trophy for the largest number of points made during field day. The prizes for the victor in the men's relay race is donated by the Rochester Y. M. H. A. and the trophy for the winner in the women's relay race has been offered by Leon Brounstein, president of the Syracuse Y. M. H. A.

An automobile parade will be held on Monday, September 1, from the convention headquarters to the stadium. The Syracuse Y. M. H. A. will give a prize to the organization bringing the largest representation.

The convention banquet and ball will be held in the new Hotel Syracuse Monday night. William Rubin will be toastmaster. This will be the first large social event to be held in the new hall outside of the function arranged for the opening night.

Some Cow.

The following advertisement appeared a while ago in a California newspaper:

"For Sale—One large, red-and-white cow, three-eighths mule and five-eighths wildcat. She usually goes on a visit every summer, but is at present attached to her home by means of a log chain. To any person wishing to buy her, I will throw in the chain and a sledge hammer. Would be delighted to sell this cow to some citizen of San Diego who thinks he can whip Mexico single-handed."

Every music-lover treasures the memory of some concert, some operatic performance, some music event in which a favorite artist has appeared. The Victrola and Victor Records only, permit you to recall such cherished hours in the most realistic way; permit you to arrange such programs at such times as the artists themselves might do if they played for you alone. SAVAGE ADVISES DAIRYMEN TO STOP BUYING FEED

How the eastern dairymen can meet the present low milk price and high feed price is the subject of a leading article in the last issue of the Dairymen's League News, by E. S. Savage, dairy feed specialist at the New York State College of Agriculture.

"We cannot afford to produce milk at the present price and buy concentrates at the present level," says Professor Savage. Less concentrated feed must be purchased. The cost of milk production in August on the basis of the Warren formula is $3.215 per 100 lbs. for 3% milk, figured without any profits. This is figured with hay at $16.80 per ton, corn at 97c per bushel, feed at $2.32 per hundred and labor at .366 per hour. The cash received by the farmer for June milk was $1.24 per hundred lbs. With concentrates at $40 per ton, the cost of the concentrates for 100 lbs. of milk is .35. With concentrates at $40 per ton, the cost per 100 lbs. of milk is .58. That means that a reduction of $1.0 per ton in the cost of concentrates is the same as an increase in the price of milk of 17 per 100 lbs. Reducing the amount of concentrates fed is another method of increasing the price of milk."

Professor Savage summarizes his advice to dairymen as follows: "Stop buying feed until prices get to the point where we are justified in buying. That means not much above $40 per ton for the mixture of concentrates. The present market is not justified and cannot be sustained. Work harder to keep up production by means of all the green and succulent things that can be gleaned off the farm this fall, late pasture, meadow pasture, second crop clover and grasses, green corn, and the like,

With a minimum of concentrates. When the market gets to going the other way it will drop to a reasonable level. Kill the surplus cow. She costs too much to keep."

Professor Savage also points out a fact, not generally known to farmers, concerning ingredient prices. He states that the manufacturers of such products as linseed oil meal, bran, gluten feed, etc., do not base the price of these by-products on a percentage of the cost of the raw material, but get all the traffic will bear from the farmer, with no relation to the cost of the original product or the price received for the main product made therefrom.

Inspection of The City Home

The committee of the State Charities Aid Association of Ulster county has made the following report to the president on its annual visit and inspection of the City Home:

To the President Ulster County State Charities Aid Association:

Your committee on inspecting the City Home, reports as follows:

Our annual visit and inspection was made on July 23rd. Total number of inmates during year, 43. At present there are 15 women age 16-22, eldest colored woman, 15 men, 23-89, oldest man colored. Nationality, four Irish, four German, one Scotch, one Polish, one Greek, one Spanish, remainder United States. Cause of residence, old age, illness, incompetence.

Several of these inmates pay a weekly sum of $3.00 to the city. Inmates who are able to do so assist in various ways, in and about the home.

Doctor makes weekly visits and on call Episcopal and Roman Catholic clergy make regular calls and are on call any time. Other denominations arrange for weekly services. Inmates seriously ill are treated at the City and Benedictine hospitals for which the city pays fixed charges.

A matron is employed in caring for the women. A good cook prepares the food except bread which is supplied by a local baker. Food is wholesome and plentiful. Breakfast consists of cereal, potatoes, meat or fish, vegetables, fruit or season as berries, cherries. On Sundays breakfast is served at 8, eggs are given, lunch of crackers and tea at noon. Dinner at 3 with dessert added, this arrangement gives the cook some free time.

Cocoa or milk is given to those who want it in the evening. The cook has 100 cans of fruit for winter use. Water supply, sanitation, ventilation, laundry were fully detailed in previous reports and remain in a No. 1 condition. Improvements—a new kitchen range, a new hot water boiler being placed in laundry. Interior of home painted throughout. New window shades. A recent inspection by the state gave the home an A rating as to buildings and administration.

Comment on this, is unnecessary. except to say that any other report would be unjust.

Uniform kindness and consideration is the watchword of the superintendent, who has just been elected president of the State Association Superintendents of Poor. Your committee are glad to record their unqualified need of praise to an official who has made possible a real home for our old people left to the care of the public charity.

Respectfully submitted,
WRS WILLIAM N. FESSENDEN.
WRS THOMAS J. HICKEY.

Dr. Cady Speaks To Kiwanians

The Rev. Dr. Fetham Cady was the speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Club, held at the Y. M. C. A. today. Dr. Cady spoke to the club on "Iceland," which subject, he said, was suggested to him by the fact that today the American flyers were scheduled to hop off from Reykjavik.

In his address Dr. Cady brought out some very interesting facts about the people of Iceland with respect to both their political, social and economic life. His address was highly appreciated by the members of the club and at its conclusion a number of questions were asked him by members of the club.

The members of the club voted to take out a membership in the Ulster County Farm Bureau, thus carrying out a suggestion by the Kiwanis International, that Kiwanians should seek to secure better cooperation between the city man and the farm man. The club also decided to enter a team in the horse shoe pitching contest at the Farm Bureau picnic at Forsyth Park on August 28th.

For the past couple of weeks the club has been carrying on correspondence with County Attorney John W. Eckert to ascertain whether or not it was within his power to prevent carnival companies from showing just outside of the city limits. Attorney Eckert informed them that such action did not come within his jurisdiction but was a matter for the local town authorities to decide. The club then went on record as being opposed to carnivals showing just outside of the city limits.

A committee composed of all the doctors who are members of the club, together with the president of the club and Captain Miller of the Salvation Army was appointed to make an investigation for the purpose of finding out what undernourished children could make the best use of the proceeds from the Chautauqua, which the club brought to this city a number of weeks ago.

USE OF LIME NOT GOING OUT ON NEW YORK FARMS

Soil liming is not going out of fashion with the business farmer who has an eye for results, says Professor A. F. Gustafson of the department of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca. He points out that in recent months there has been some discussion in agricultural papers to the effect that liming the land was an obsolete or unnecessary practice.

He admits that on soils only slightly acid, the application of farm manure and acid phosphate may be sufficient to produce a good growth of clover, especially alsike, and these, of course, are most commonly used in good systems of general live stock farming in New York state.

But on the sourer soils, he says, liming is the cheapest known method of correcting soil acidity and making possible the growth of desirable legumes.

Emphasis should be laid likewise, says Professor Gustafson, on the regular use of phosphorus for growing clover. A suggested inexpensive but profitable system of soil treatment for clover is all the manure available on a farm, spread frequently in light applications, and acid phosphate put on at the average rate of about 200 pounds to the acre for each year of the rotation, together with the lime necessary in the particular region involved. Acid phosphate seems to reduce the soil acidity a little, but the use of lime in some form—limestone is usually cheapest—is the best known way to make clover grow on a sour soil.

GOOD WORK IS DONE BY COW TEST ASSOCIATIONS

In the United States less than one-half of one per cent of the dairy cows are under test, and the United States has an average yearly production for each cow of 3,627 pounds of milk. In Denmark 25 per cent of all the dairy cows are in cow testing associations, and the average production of each cow is 5,666 pounds.

These figures, according to Joseph J. Linehan of the Andes cow testing association of Delaware county, are important, and show the real value of the work being done by these organizations. The first cow test association was formed in Michigan, but Wisconsin now claims the honors of having the most of any state in the union. Wisconsin has 151 of them, which makes about 25 per cent of all there are in the country, and Mr. Linehan maintains that this is one of the main reasons she has forged ahead so rapidly as a dairy state.

Mr. Linehan goes on to say that it is of great importance to a dairyman to know the exact production of each individual animal. There is just one way for him to know what his cows are doing, and that is by checking up on them monthly through cow-testing associations.

To increase herd production, and profits as rapidly and consistently as possible, a dairyman must combine all the principles of the association which work toward the general improvement of the herd. Better methods and practices better grain mixtures, better roughage, and better sites, all combined, will put any dairyman on the road to success, but his practice must not fall down at any one point or he will not reap the greatest benefit from his efforts.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service)

"CLEAN 'EM UP" IS HARRY FOX'S MOTTO

Harry Fox, ace of American Legion membership campaigners in South Dakota and the Middle West, is a dry cleaner by trade.

"Clean 'em up" is his motto in business and in his Legion efforts. He is the niftiest little mop-up-guy going, when it comes to getting the boys to sign up for the Legion.

If you don't believe it just take a slight peep at his record. Two hundred and eighty-five paid-up members signed up in the first four months of this year. If there's a better record it hasn't been disclosed to date.

Harry has a selling personality. The boys just can't resist his line of talk when he opens up on them and shows them the "dotted line" for their signature.

Fox is a charter member of Harold Mason post of the American Legion at Sioux Falls S. D.

This isn't his first attempt to sell Legion memberships either. He is one of those fellows who keeps everlastingly at it. In 1920 he first began operations on a department store scale.

That year he signed up 80 members. The next year he came under the wire with a grand total of 100. A 25 per cent gain wasn't just Harry's idea of a healthy, growing business. The next year he hitched up his belt a little tighter and rolled in 150 members.

Then the membership, somehow, struck a slump. Harry didn't have as much time for it or something. The best he could do was 125.

He was downright disappointed. He will confess it to you himself.

But he was game. He merely grinned with a grin that meant business.

Harry Fox.

He went out to show the rest of the gang that it was just a fluke. He made up his mind to beat that record 'way yonder.

Did he? Well, 285 in the first four months of 1924 rather looks like it. And the years not nearly over yet. Harry may have all of South Dakota signed up in his post before the year's over if the other fellows don't keep their eyes open.

How does he do it? It's really very simple.

He meets a prospect. He explains the work of the Legion earnestly to him. He tells him about its service to the individual and the community at large. He gets that prospect in the frame of mind where he just naturally wants to join a big organization which does things.

Mr. Veteran may not join right then. It takes a little time with some of them. But he goes away with a look on his face that shows he's got something to think about.

Does Harry quit then? Not on your life! The fun's just really getting well started.

The only time Harry sits down is when he is driving the delivery wagon for the dry-cleaning establishments of which he is part owner.

The next time he sees his man he comes right back at the old proposition.

"You would not have been outside during the war, would you?"

That's the way he greets him. And Mr. Fox follows that query up with another, equally to the point.

"Then why be on the outside now?" Harry never says quit until Mr. Veteran has got his name down on that little card, with a face beaming with a look of deep-down-in-the-soul satisfaction that tells he's mighty glad he's done it, too.

He is married. He has spent most of his life in Sioux Falls. He served with the Eighth division, the Pathfinders, at Camp Freeman, California.

Tribute to the Legion

"CERTAINLY if any organization is in a position to recognize the value of mutual understanding between nations, it is the American Legion," declared William Mather, Lewis president of George Washington University, in an address on "Education for International Understanding" made before the National Educational association at a recent meeting of that organization at Washington. President Mather continued: "The improved architecture in various parts of our nation, particularly in smaller communities bears testimony to the effect which their stay in Europe had upon our soldiers. Likewise the improved sanitary conditions in the reconstructed districts of France bear testimony to the lessons learned from our troops." In referring further to the Legion, the noted saint stated: "It seems to me that one who would not go to the defense of his government in its hour of danger has no right to enjoy its benefits in time of peace. The Legion has that right."

OBTAINS AID FOR MANY LEGION MEN

The national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion at Washington has thrown the spotlight on many little obscure claims of the World War that for many seasons past have played to an unresponsive house, with the result that hundreds of disabled veterans, who of themselves were unable to obtain relief, are now on the road to health and happiness. There is the case of John Adams, disabled veteran to whom the Legion extended a helping hand.

In June 1918, John Adams enlisted at Pittsburgh, Pa., as a private in the infantry. The following October, while participating in bayonet drill, he got tangled up with that instrument and jabbed himself in the groin. He was bandaged up by one of the camp doctors. He got better and though his side troubled him now and then he didn't take any particular pains to tell the army surgeons about it when he was examined for discharge and consequently got by the mustering-out officers with a clear bill of health.

John went back to his pre-war work as a stationary engineer and carried on for some ten months. Then his old bayonet wound began to assert itself. He had to give up the struggle and filed a claim for compensation in December, 1919. He was sent by the veterans' bureau to a government hospital to be operated on several months later for gland trouble in his groin. Immediately following the operation he grew worse, until it became necessary to rate him as permanently and totally disabled, no service connection, however, being admitted.

From that time on John's life has been just one hospital after another—and John was still a very sick man. John had never been to school much and had to depend upon others to lead him through the red-tape labyrinth that shut off help. One agency after another was lost in the maze. Then some one steered John onto the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion. Things looked better from then on.

The Legion committee got the names of his comrades in the service secured through its lavits affirming John's accident at camp, obtained the name and affidavit of the medical officer who treated John at camp, and finally got together the historical data necessary to establish the fact that the boy was hurt in the manner, on the date, at the place, just as he said.

But this was not enough. There was no mention of a bayonet stab anywhere in John's official papers in the War department. Therefore, John could not have been stabbed. He was still "out of luck." In so far as connecting his disability with service was concerned John had by now been hospitalized continuously for four years, and a half. He was ragged. He de-spaired—but not the Legion. Outside physicians and surgeons were called in. The government doctors were interviewed personally and finally, with every bit of evidence that could be secured from all sources, the case was placed before the director of the veterans' bureau at a special conference with Legion representatives.

Within a few days John received a check for several thousand dollars from the United States veterans' bureau, covering the compensation he had gone without for so many years.

Demand Monument for First Killed in War

In Locust Hill cemetery, Evansville, Ind., lies the body of the first American soldier to lose his life in the World War. No imposing monument casts a protecting shadow over that grave; it is marked only by a small glass fruit jar with a piece of paper inside bearing his name in faded letters "James Bethel Gresham."

The Everette Burdette post of the American Legion of Evansville is sponsoring a movement to raise funds to build a monument over this last resting place of the first doughboy to go "west." The chamber of commerce and other civic clubs and organizations are planning to support the movement.

Gresham was honored with a state funeral when his body was returned from France.

Classifying Milton

Julius was a well-brought-up child and when he went to visit Milton who just ran wild and did all the things a boy shouldn't do, he was greatly surprised and he said to his mother: "Why, I don't believe Milton ever does anything but don't's."

"EXPERTS" TO ORDER.

Self-respecting and honored members of the American medical profession are probably not contemplating with any great degree of satisfaction the part played by alienists and psychiatrists in the trial of Leopold and Loeb at Chicago. These medical "experts" who have been brought to the witness stand by the defense and the State in turn, to give their views of the mental condition and responsibility of the young murderers, have had the same or similar training, have studied the same medical problems, have the same facts before them, the same means of informing themselves in the present case, and yet, according to the published reports of the proceedings, they arrive at diametrically opposite and contrary conclusions both as to the mental condition and moral responsibility of the prisoners.

According to the group drawing pay from the defense, Leopold and Loeb are sufficiently abnormal mentally to cut down their moral responsibility for their atrocity just enough to save them from the gallows but not enough to save them from life imprisonment. According to the group of like experts employed by the State, the two confessed murderers are altogether sane and are mentally abnormal only in the degree that all criminals are. It has been suggested that neither group has been quite free, that both have been cautiously and calculatingly led or limited by the questioning of counsel on both sides in each instance, implying that medical science can be moulded or controlled by both the astute criminal lawyer and the powerful prosecutor—which is scarcely convincing. In any case the appearance is that two groups of medical experts have set out to serve their employers faithfully at whatever cost to their profession, for certainly the spectacle is one tending to injure and lower the standing of the representatives of medical science in the eyes of a watchful public.

But let it be granted that an incorruptible medical expert, after being urgently instructed to limit his evidence to the answering of the questions put to him, can be so handled by a crafty lawyer as not to say anything hurtful to the latter's purposes. What then? Could anything be more confusing to the judge and harmful in its effect on the jury? That conflict of "expert" medical testimony in Chicago is not the first instance of its kind, and important action with a view to find a remedy much needed has been taken by the legislature of New York. A law passed at its last session empowers the judge to appoint a board or commission of experts to serve him, instead of the defense or the prosecution—experts who are asked neither to save nor convict but to make a perfectly free statement of their views as to the mental status and responsibility of prisoners. This does not prevent conflict of medical testimony altogether, for the law permits the defense also to provide its experts in a case involving the question of insanity, but it points in the direction of a greatly needed reform.

UNENVIABLE PRIMACY.

According to the New York papers, in welcoming Judge William Allen to the Court of General Sessions Judge Talley made this startling statement: "You have come on the bench of the greatest criminal court in the world . . . at a time when this country is suffering under an indictment which proclaims it to be the most lawless on earth. You will find that the United States must plead guilty to that indictment."

For years past statistics have awarded unenviable primacy to this country in the matter of crime proportionate to population. Among the causes that have been assigned are relatively infrequent convictions, failure of adequate punishment after conviction, our heterogeneous, friction-breeding population in no small part gathered from the ends of the earth, etc., etc. In recent years the great increase of criminal cases and the crowding of the courts have been largely attributed to violations of the Volstead act.

On this latter subject, in connection with the report of Commissioner

Haynes, we read: "Forty-one thousand criminal cases involving violations of that statute were instituted during the first ten months of the fiscal year ending in July; 35,000 convictions were obtained. Volstead indictments flooded the Federal calendars and delay the normal functioning of the courts by months and years. Many a judge who was barely keeping pace with his cases before Prohibition now confesses himself hopelessly behind."

That Body of Yours

"NERVES."

It is interesting to watch the different attitude of the profession towards "nervousness," "nerves" and "nervous exhaustion," than that held just a few years ago.

If a patient exhibited any of above signs, it was simply said to be due to the brain or nervous system and a rest was advised.

This was good treatment, of course, but wasn't getting at the cause.

In some way the nerves or brain were thought to be responsible for and "quickness" or unusual behavior.

If an individual became hysterical or melancholy, then the brain was blamed for it.

It is now becoming more apparent that various glands of the body are responsible for these conditions. The thyroid, and other ductless glands, which, while not originating action or life as we might say, nevertheless seem to "regulate" the actions of the body.

A watch may have all its component parts; you wind it up, and away it goes.

But it may run fast or slow, and the regulator is adjusted so as to make the watch keep perfect time.

These glands seem to have the power of making certain processes, nervous and others, adjust themselves properly to the whole body as it functions.

However, these glands themselves can be affected by the blood, which as it passes through them, to nourish them, leaves with them certain harmful materials.

These harmful materials actually cause a change in the structure of the gland, with the result that its action on the system—the nervous system—is quite marked, and the affected person may laugh, cry, be full of activity, unable to sleep, or may on the other hand be dull, heavy, disinclined to do anything of a mental or physical nature.

Just a case of too much speed or not enough to put it plainly.

Now all these conditions are not, of course, always due to harmful materials from the teeth, throat, intestine or other part of the body. It might be possible for one to inherit an abnormal condition of one or more of these glands.

The treatment of these conditions, by means of portions of the glands themselves, is still in its early stages, but certainly has shown striking results in some cases.

ELTING FAVORS COLONEL HAYWARD FOR GOVERNOR

The Knickerbocker Press in commenting on the race for the Republican nomination for governor, has the following to say in regard to the attitude that Philip Elting, of this city, has taken in regard to the matter:

One of the old line Republican leaders, Philip Elting of Kingston, is declared to be in a peculiar predicament. He is collector of the port of New York, and has been quoted as favoring the nomination of Colonel Hayward, a fellow federal office holder. In other years, however, Mr. Elting has been outspoken with some of the New York leaders in favor of a wet candidate for governor. Colonel Hayward is a staunch dry in politics.

Rotarians Start Around the World

Charles Ramsey Tries to Make Globe Tour in 40 Minutes, but Leaves Them in India—Interesting Account of World Trip by Close Observer.

Kingston Rotarians at their luncheon on Wednesday entertained visitors from Zanesville, O.; Santa Barbara, Cal.; Youngstown, O., and Poughkeepsie in addition to C. W. Lewis of Englewood, N. J., a former member of the Kingston club. The speaker was Charles Ramsey, who recently returned from a trip around the world and who related many interesting experiences. Mr. Ramsey tried to take the Rotarians around the world in 40 minutes, but had to leave them in India.

Mr. Ramsey sailed January 14 with a party of 700 of whom 198 were widows, which caused some of the passengers to suggest that the name of the ship be changed to "Widonia." The gambling habits and the evictions from the cemeteries seemed to have most impressed Mr. Ramsey in Havana. The national lottery is conducted under state auspices, with 10 per cent of the receipts going to the state. It is said to be very fair and honest, but after hearing that the last drawing resulted in the first prize being won by the president, the second by the president's wife and the third by the president's secretary, Mr. Ramsey did not invest in any tickets. In the cemeteries space is rented and when the rent is no longer paid the remains are evicted and thrown in a boneyard. The size of the boneyard shows that failure to keep up the rent is by no means uncommon.

Navy day at Colon, with thousands of sailors ashore and 97 per cent of their orders impressed Mr. Ramsey greatly and the adventures of the dancing class on the ship, which Mr. Ramsey joined, also furnished the theme for some entertaining reminiscences.

The Japanese, he said, are the most stolid of people. A procession of royalty in Tokio was marked only by decorations; the people on the street kept absolute silence.

In Shanghai, Canton and other cities in the East "the accumulated filth of the ages" and the fact that persons afflicted with smallpox and leprosy roamed the streets were the high spots. Stores are kept locked and opened for a customer, then kept locked, opened to let a customer in and then locked again. On the boat from Hong Kong to Canton there were heavily armed guards to prevent the boat from being stolen by the officers and crew. After a ride in a sedan chair Mr. Ramsey tipped the carrier and was at once surrounded by a mob demanding tips. Only a police escort got him away.

County League Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ulster County Dairymen's League will be held at the Stone Ridge Grange Hall on Monday evening, August 25, at 7:30. There have been many interesting developments in the milk business in the past few months and Charles Shepard will be the speaker of the evening. Also the local association has provided a very plentiful supply of League ice cream so that there is no reason why the milk producers of the county and their families should not be present.

"A WOMAN of PARIS"

featuring Edna Purviance

Written and Directed by

CHARLES CHAPLIN

Marriage or Luxury?

She had everything that any woman's mind can wish or heart desire—but without Love.

She wanted Love—that great, sweeping, all-embracing Love—A genuine home with her Man and his children. She had to choose and freely made her choice. Then Fate—Just one of the little things that make everyday life big with tragedy—

Fate brushes in, and Love again is denied, and luxury becomes even more unbearable. A story that pictures the tremendous influence of little things in our daily lives with a clearness and sharpness that is startling in its realism.

GOOD WORK IS DONE BY COW TEST ASSOCIATIONS

In the United States less than one-half of one per cent of the dairy cows are under test, and the United States has an average yearly production for each cow of 3,627 pounds of milk. In Denmark 25 per cent of all the dairy cows are in cow testing associations, and the average production of each cow is 5,566 pounds.

These figures, according to Joseph J. Linehan of the Andes cow testing association of Delaware county, are important, and show the real value of the work being done by these organizations. The first cow test association was formed in Michigan, but Wisconsin now claims the honors of having the most of any state in the union. Wisconsin has 151 of them, which makes about 25 per cent of all there are in the country, and Mr. Linehan maintains that this is one of the main reasons she has forged ahead so rapidly as a dairy state.

Mr. Linehan goes on to say that it is of great importance to a dairyman to know the exact production of each individual animal. There is just one way for him to know what his cows are doing, and that is by checking up on them monthly through cow-testing associations.

To increase herd production, and profits as rapidly and consistently as possible, a dairyman must combine all the principles of the association which work toward the general improvement of the herd. Better methods and practices, better grain mixtures, better roughage, and better sires, all combined, will put any dairyman on the road to success, but his practice must not fall down at any one point or he will not reap the greatest benefit from his efforts.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

"CLEAN 'EM UP" IS HARRY FOX'S MOTTO

Harry Fox, ace of American Legion membership campaigns in South Dakota and the Middle West, is a dry cleaner by trade.

"Clean 'em up" is his motto in business and in his Legion efforts. He is the slightest little mop-up going, when it comes to getting the boys to sign up for the Legion.

If you don't believe it just take a slight peep at his record. Two hundred and eighty-five paid-up members signed up in the first four months of this year. If there's a better record it hasn't been disclosed to date.

Harry has a selling personality. The boys just can't resist his line of talk when he opens up on them and shows them the "dotted line" for their signature.

Fox is a charter member of Harold Mason post of the American Legion at Sioux Falls, S. D.

This isn't his first attempt to sell Legion memberships, either. He is one of those fellows who keeps everlastingly at it. In 1920 he first began operations on a department store scale.

That year he signed up 80 members. The next year he came under the wire with a grand total of 100. A 25 per cent gain wasn't just Harry's idea of a healthy, growing business. The next year he hitched up his belt a little tighter and rolled in 150 members.

Then the membership, somehow, struck a slump. Harry didn't have as much time for it, or something. The best he could do was 125.

He was downright disappointed. He will confess it to you himself.

But he was game. He merely grinned with a grin that meant business. He went out to show the rest of the gang that it was just a fluke. He made up his mind to beat that record way yonder.

Harry Fox.

Did he? Well, 285 in the first four months of 1924 rather looks like it. And the year's not nearly over yet. Harry may have all of South Dakota signed up in his post before the year's over if the other fellows don't keep their eyes open.

How does he do it? It's really very simple.

He meets a prospect. He explains the work of the Legion earnestly to him. He tells him about its service to the individual and the community at large. He gets that prospect in the frame of mind where he just naturally wants to join a big organization which does things.

Mr. Veteran may not join right then. It takes a little time with some of them. But he goes away with a look on his face that shows he's got something to think about.

Does Harry quit then? Not on your life! The fun's just really getting well started.

The only time Harry sits down is when he is driving the delivery wagon for the dry-cleaning establishments of which he is part owner.

The next time he sees his man he comes right back at the old proposition.

"You would not have been outside during the war, would you?"

That's the way he greets him.

And Mr. Fox follows that query up with another, equally to the point.

"Then why be on the outside now?" Harry never says quit until Mr. Veteran has got his name down on that little card, with a face beaming with a look of deep-down-in-the-soul satisfaction that tells he's mighty glad he's done it, too.

He is married. He has spent most of his life in Sioux Falls. He served with the Eighth division, the Pathfinders, at Camp Freeman, California.

Tribute to the Legion

"CERTAINLY if any organization is in a position to recognize the value of mutual understanding between nations, it is the American Legion," declared William Mather Lewis, president of George Washington University, in an address on "Education for International Understanding" made before the National Educational association at a recent meeting of that organization at Washington. President Mather continued: "The improved architecture in various parts of our nation, particularly in smaller communities, bears testimony to the effect which their stay in Europe had upon our soldiers. Likewise, the improved sanitary conditions in the reconstructed districts of France bear testimony to the lessons learned from our troops." In referring further to the Legion, the noted savant stated: "It seems to me that one who would not go to the defense of his government in its hour of danger has no right to enjoy its benefits in time of peace. The Legion has that right."

OBTAINS AID FOR MANY LEGION MEN

The national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion at Washington has thrown the spotlight on many little obscure names of the World war that for many seasons past have played to an unresponsive house, with the result that hundreds of disabled veterans, who of themselves were unable to obtain relief, are now on the road to health and happiness. There is the case of John Adams, disabled veteran, to whom the Legion extended a helping hand.

In June, 1918, John Adams enlisted at Pittsburgh, Pa., as a private in the infantry. The following October, while participating in bayonet drill, he got tangled up with that instrument and jabbed himself in the groin. He was bandaged up by one of the camp doctors. He got better and, though his side troubled him now and then, he didn't take any particular pains to tell the army surgeons about it when he was examined for discharge, and consequently got by the mustering-out officers with a clear bill of health.

John went back to his pre-war work as a stationary engineer and carried on for some ten months. Then his old bayonet wound began to assert itself. He had to give up the struggle and filed a claim for compensation in December, 1919. He was sent by the veterans' bureau to a government hospital to be operated on several months later for gland trouble in his groin. Immediately following the operation he grew worse, until it became necessary to rate him as permanently and totally disabled, no service connection, however, being admitted.

From that time on John's life has been just one hospital after another—and John was still a very sick man. John had never been to school much, and had to depend upon others to lead him through the red-tape labyrinth that shut off help. One agency after another was lost in the maze. Then some one steered John onto the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion. Things looked better from then on.

The Legion committee got the names of his comrades in the service, secured their affidavits affirming John's accident at camp, obtained the name and affidavit of the medical officer who treated John at camp, and finally got together the historical data necessary to establish the fact that the boy was hurt in the manner, on the date, at the place, just as he said.

But this was not enough. There was no mention of a bayonet stab anywhere in John's official papers in the war department. Therefore, John could not have been stabbed. He was still "out of luck" in so far as connecting his disability with service was concerned. John had by now been hospitalized continuously for four years and a half. He was ragged. He despaired—but not the Legion. Outside physicians and surgeons were called in. The government doctors were interviewed personally and finally, with every bit of evidence that could be secured from all sources, the case was placed before the director of the veterans' bureau at a special conference with Legion representatives.

Within a few days John received a check for several thousand dollars from the United States veterans' bureau, covering the compensation he had gone without for so many years.

Demand Monument for First Killed in War

In Locust Hill cemetery, Evansville, Ind., lies the body of the first American soldier to lose his life in the World war. No imposing monument casts a protecting shadow over that grave; it is marked only by a small glass jar with a piece of paper inside bearing his name in faded letters "James Bethel Gresham."

The Everett Burdette post of the American Legion of Evansville is sponsoring a movement to raise funds to build a monument over this last resting place of the first doughboy to go "west." The chamber of commerce and other civic clubs and organizations are planning to support the movement.

Gresham was honored with a state funeral when his body was returned from France.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MRS. COW'S STORY

"A very strange thing happened not long ago," said Mrs. Cow. She chewed her cud for a moment or two, then wished her tail and whiskers an annoying fly off and looked about her.

"I heard this story from one of the children who had been visiting at the seashore. She didn't tell it to me but she told the other children about it and I was listening."

"As I said, she had been visiting at the seashore. She told about the ocean and the swimming and the sailing. She told about the castles which they built in the sand and of houses made of sand which the ocean came and washed away."

"I thought it rather rude of the ocean but then I suppose the ocean isn't so very mannerly. Anyway she didn't seem to mind."

"But she said that one day they took a drive and they drove along a road which went back a little way into the country."

"At the seashore she said there were no country things at all; it was just a little seashore place with an enormous ocean and a lot of sand as far as I could make out from her description."

"The ocean at times became very rough and there were some bad storms but she seemed to like it though I am sure I wouldn't."

"She didn't speak of pastures or meadows or fields or streams."

"The ocean, it seems, is a great deal larger than this stream of ours nearby. I heard her say that."

"It made me think I wouldn't like the ocean, as I have said. Or, rather, I should say I wouldn't like to live where she went a-visitin'."

"But upon the day she went for this drive she spoke about they passed by a little house and back of the house were some hens, chickens, roosters and a goat, and in a tiny pasture back of that she saw a cow."

"She said the other children were all very much excited. Oh yes, there were other children on the ride, too."

"The other children shouted out: 'Oh, see the cow! Oh, see the cow!'"

"Now fancy, Cow friends, living where the sight of one cow is something to shout about!"

"Can you imagine such a place?"

"She seemed surprised herself, but she said she hadn't seen cows at the seashore."

"Wasn't that a very curious thing to think of a cow being such an astonishing sight that they had to shout about it?"

"No one goes by here and shouts out: 'See the cow!'"

"Of course they couldn't speak of seeing just one cow as there are many of us here. But I can't help thinking of that strange, strange place with lots and lots of ocean and no cows."

"Moo, moo, what a funny world it is when you think in some places they don't have cows."

"The world must feel very queer in such places if I may speak in this fashion."

"Moo, moo, I wouldn't want to be anywhere such as a seaside place where there was sand instead of a meadow."

"So I can understand why cows don't go there. But I don't think such a place can be very nice."

"And I'll tell you another thing, Cow friends, she seemed very glad to get back to the farm again."

"She liked the seashore but you could see she liked it here best."

"It all depends upon the point of view, as people say, but from my cow point of view an enormous ocean and a lot of sand doesn't make for happiness."

"No, give me a pasture or a meadow or a field and a stream and some woods, but don't bother about your big ocean or your quantities of sand."

"Moo, moo," said the other cows, "we agree with you, Mrs. Cow. And what an astonishing thing to think that one cow caused so much excitement to the children was driving!"

Why It Was Smaller

"Oh, papa," exclaimed little four-year-old Edwin, "see what a bright star!"

"Yes," replied the father, "and it is three times as large as our earth."

"Oh, no, it isn't," said Edwin.

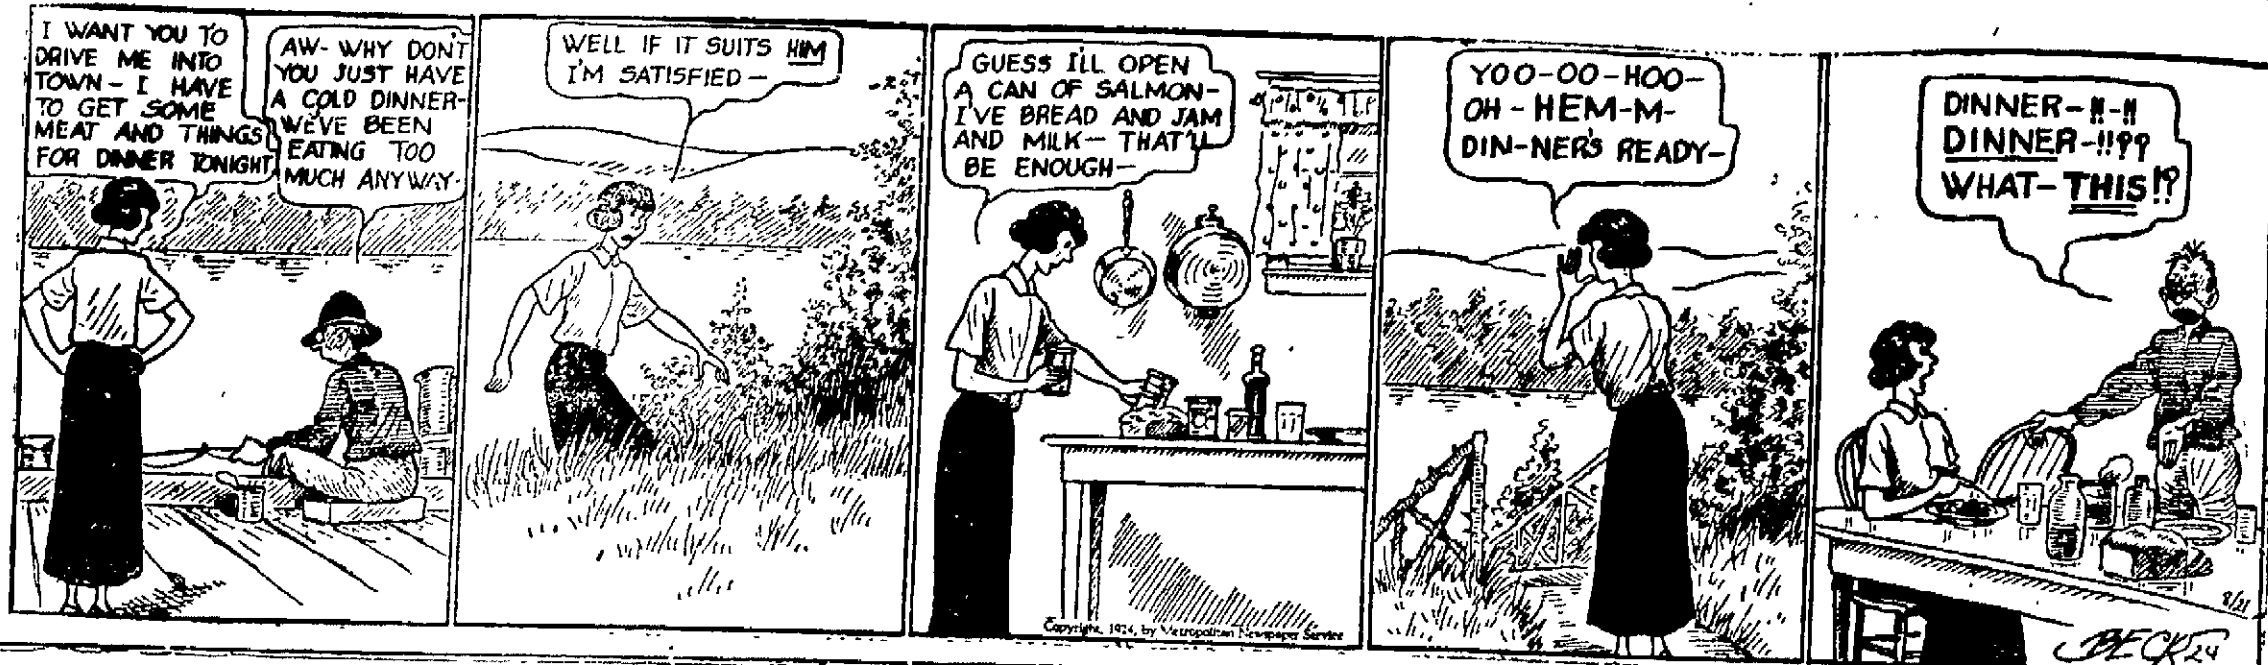

"Why do you doubt it?" asked his father.

"Because if it was it would keep the rain off."

When Newly Painted

To prevent windows sticking the thing to remember is that for two or three days after the frames are painted each window should be opened and run up and down two or three times a day. Unless this is done the windows are almost certain to stick.

GAS BUGGIES—They Don't Always Mean What They Say

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

The best aristocracy of which any man can boast is a long line of healthy, honest, industrious ancestors.

He who prides himself upon his ancestry is like potatoes—all that is good of him is under ground.

DISHES YOU WILL ENJOY

Take freshly popped, tender corn well seasoned with salt and butter and put through an old coffee mill kept for such purposes. Serve with cream as a dessert or a Sunday night lunch.

Popcorn Pudding.—Take two cupsful of popped corn, ground; three cupsful of milk, three eggs slightly beaten, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one tablespoonful of butter and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt. Scald the milk and pour it over the corn and let stand one hour. Add the remaining ingredients, turn into a buttered dish and bake in a slow oven until firm. Serve with cream or maple syrup.

Sillabubs.—Take a quart of heavy cream, sweeten and flavor to taste, whip until stiff, skimming off the top so that every bit of the thin cream drains through a sieve. When all is whipped, pile high in steamed sherbet cups and serve with sponge cake.

Lemon Cheese Cakes.—Line patty pans with puff paste or rich pastry and fill with the following: Take one pint of well-drained cheese, add three eggs, one tablespoonful of flour, one tablespoonful of butter; mix and mash the cheese very fine, add one and one-half cupsful of cream and sugar to taste and the grated rind of a lemon. Fill the shells and dust the tops with grated nutmeg and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven.

Olives Stuffed With Anchovies.—Peel large olives from the stone, leaving the peeling in spiral form. Wipe the oil from the anchovy fillets and press one into each olive. Set them on a glass dish on a bed of water; serve with bread sticks before or with the soup.

Celery With Cheese.—Cut the coarser stalks of celery and cook until tender in boiling salted water. Place a layer of the cooked celery in a baking dish, cover with a layer of rich, white sauce, sprinkle generously with grated cheese and repeat with another layer. Finish the top with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Golden Rule Inn Offers Engagement to Freeman Vocalists.

Golden Rule Inn, Mirror Lake, Ulster Park, N. Y.

August 19th, 1924.

Editor, Kingston Freeman.

Dear Sir:

The regular guests here enjoyed listening to the Freeman Quartet who so generously burst forth into song while at the Inn last Sunday. In fact our patrons musical senses have been so overcome with delight from the strains of the lovely chords (wafted over entire 116 acres by the breeze) that we have been flooded with requests for their return.

The sentiment of appreciation for the wonderful work was only voiced after the departure of the artists. It is the general opinion that the "pinch" of artistic achievement had been reached at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the great quartet offered the two numbers "Sweet Adeline" and "The Old Family Toothbrush."

Of particular excellence was the ease with which the tenor, presumably foreman of the chorus, took the notes seemingly higher than Pike's Peak.

We are greatly in need of good talent to entertain and have a season's engagement to offer these young aspirants at salaries exceeding 20 bottles near beer per day each.

Very Truly Yours,

LOUIS KUNTZ.

Mr. Kuntz is in error. It was not a quartet, only a trio, that he heard. Had it been a quartet he would have been even more pleased, while The Freeman Sextet would have made him delicious with joy.

The Coal Bin Knows!

"THEY can't fool the coal bin when it comes to fuel economy in home heating because I know just how much coal they shovel out of me every season. During the last two years, since I have been feeding a celebrated Thatcher Tubular Warm Air Furnace, a ton of coal goes a whole lot further than it ever did before. Take it from me, the Thatcher Tubular is mighty easy on the coal bin."

The Combustion Chamber of the Thatcher Tubular allows ample space for combustion of hot gases. It prevents the fresh air from becoming "burnt" or scorched. Write for illustrated booklet "Helpful Hints on Heating."

"INDIVIDUALITY OF DRESS"

A Shingle for a Stout Woman Can Transform Her Appearance

By MADAME LOUISE.

Nationally known authority on hairdress. Trustee of National Hairdressers' Assn.; executive board member of Chicago organization.

Mrs. Stout wants her hair bobbed because all her friends have their hair short. But once in the chair she grows apprehensive. "Do not cut it too short!" she commands as the long locks fall. Then as she ventures a glimpse of her shorn self, "Please wave it tight." If she had followed the advice of the operator, who understands the lines of the head, she would have looked quite different. This type, with short neck and larger features, should wear the short cut and the soft, large wave. But she failed to make the best of her looks, because of her lack of a sense of fitness. And it's the same lack, by the way, that made her choose the dropped neckline and checker heads that emphasize her short, plump neck.

Sycamore Trees Hit by Blight

Sycamore trees this spring and early summer were especially hard hit by a blight, commonly known as sycamore blight, in many states east of the Mississippi river, notably Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Illinois, and Virginia. The disease affects not only the common sycamore, or buttonwood, but also the Oriental Plane tree.

Although the blight occurs to a slight extent every year in the eastern and central United States, the severity of the attack this year, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, appears to be largely due to the unusually wet spring, when the leaves were developing.

The blight injures the newly developed leaves and the young shoots. The new leaves just unfolding from the bud suddenly wither, become discolored, and finally blacken, giving the appearance of injury by frost. On the older leaves the disease appears as brown blotches or spots of irregular shape, usually along the veins. In severe cases the leaves fall, but a new crop usually is produced later in the summer. Continued defoliation in successive years and the severe dying back of the twigs eventually cause the death of the tree.

As in the case of most tree diseases, methods of controlling the blight are rather expensive and usually somewhat difficult to carry out. The value of the tree, however, for shade or ornamental purposes may possibly warrant the expense and trouble. As a first step in controlling the disease, the infected twigs should be carefully removed by pruning well back of the infected portion. All of these twigs, together with any fallen leaves and twigs, should be carefully collected and burned. They should not be thrown onto the rubbish heap, since that is often one of the most favorable places for the fungus to fruit. Its spores may then be carried to healthy trees which may thus become infected. After all the infected twigs are cut away the remainder of the tree should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture in the proportions 4-4-50. A second or third application of a weaker solution of Bordeaux mixture may be necessary before midsummer to protect the new foliage. Again, in the autumn, it is advisable to rake up and burn all fallen leaves and twigs, since this tends to prevent the spread of any disease which may be present upon them.

Huge Estates Held Up Progress of Mexico

For four hundred years less than ten thousand families have owned Mexico, says Ramon P. De Negri in the Survey. I do not mean merely controlled, influenced, directed, dominated. I mean physically owned and disposed of as a personal heritage. Humboldt said, "Mexico is the country of inequity. Nowhere does there exist such a fearful difference in the distribution of fortune, civilization, cultivation of the soil and population." It was more than slavery. It was a situation where one man owned not an estate, but a state, a kingdom almost.

When the Spaniard came and settled in Mexico, he came as a conqueror into a populated country. A system of "encomendamiento" was developed by which he took the land of the conquered people and the people to work the land he had taken.

Cortez, for instance, claimed for himself some 25,000 square miles, including 22 towns with all the lands that these towns owned and all the people that lived in them—something over 115,000 men, women and children. With this possession went all the prerogatives of sovereignty, control over life and liberty and fortune, and this estate of Cortez, like most of the other large estates of Mexico, was entailed and persisted as a unit up to the beginning of the Nineteenth century. In fact, the records show that before disestablishment was imposed this particular estate had 15 villas, 137 pueblos, 80 haciendas, 119 ranchos, 5 estancias and contained 150,000 people—all of this the personal possession of the descendants of Cortez.

Nor was this the only large encomienda. Pedro de Alvarado received the district of Xochimilco with some 50,000 inhabitants. One of the favorites of the Spanish king was given what is now the entire state of Guanajuato. As early as 1572 there were 607 encomiendas. In addition, other large estates developed through one form or another. The result was that most of the free communal land holding of the days before the conquest disappeared. A small number of Spaniards owned practically all of inhabited Mexico as their private possession.

The Spanish kings at different times tried to destroy, to limit, to undermine the large estates of Mexico, but every attempt met with resistance, and many a law and decree of the king was marked by the viceroys, "Obeyed but not executed."

Irrigation's Reward

Bahawalpur, an independent Indian state, is now a mere fringe of cultivation bordering upon the Indus river and southern Punjab. With the completion of the Sukkur barrage and Sutlej canal, however, practically 2,000,000 acres, especially adapted to wheat and cotton, will be added to the crop acreage of the state, which bids fair to become one of the richest in that region. It is estimated that the present population of 750,000 will be increased by 500,000 colonists from other parts of India.

Farm Bureau Leaders to Meet

Farm Bureau leaders of Sullivan, Ulster, Orange and Delaware counties will meet at Middletown on August 25 for a regional directors' meeting of the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, called by President Enos Lee.

Millard Davis of Kerhonkson, Ulster county, C. O. Warford of Newburgh, Orange county, and H. W. Cowan of Hobart, Delaware county, will attend as regional directors and voting members of the conference. The board of directors and county agents of these county farm bureaus will also be in attendance.

President Lee will act as chairman of the meeting. E. V. Underwood, secretary of the state federation, and Jay Coryell, state leader of county agents, will report on general policies and plans. It is expected that Carl Ladd, newly appointed director of extension at the New York State College of Agriculture, may also be present.

Local officers in discussing the conference stated that it would probably be devoted to plans for a revival of interest in the farm bureau and its possibilities of self help through joint action by the farmers in certain communities where the opportunities offered by the association through education, organization and legislation had been somewhat neglected.

They point out that the state farm bureau federation in its transportation department alone offers a service which in many counties has proved a means of saving large sums of money to farm bureau members, through freight rate adjustments and similar matters.

President Lee has called similar conferences throughout the entire state. His purpose, it is stated, is to awaken keener individual interest in the future of farm organization. The state and the national farm bureau federations, he says, have the same foundation as the county farm bureaus and only as much strength as these combined groups afford. The reason for the existence of farm associations, he declares, is to render needed service to the individual farmer. They need the support of the individual farmer to make this service possible.

Women to Visit Plattsburg

Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The women of New York state, many with sons, nephews, brothers and other relatives at the Citizens' Military Training Camps at Plattsburg, are this summer taking a close interest in the training of these young men in these voluntary camps. A few days ago Mrs. Alexander McEwan, president of the Albany Mothers' Club, paid a visit of inspection to the Plattsburg camp. This week a representative committee of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs will visit Plattsburg for a three-day stay.

The federated clubs, standing for "Good Citizenship, a National Mind and International Fellowship" and with a membership exceeding 350,000, are sending their board of directors and district chairmen to Plattsburg. This is in response to an invitation extended by Major General Robert Lee Bullard at last year's meeting at Binghamton and as a result of the federation's resolution endorsing military training passed at the Albany convention of the club women.

Mrs. John H. Booth of Plattsburg, president of the federation, has arranged with Colonel J. Malcolm Graham, camp commander here, a full program for the visiting women. They will arrive Sunday night, August 24th, and on Monday will be shown through the camp. At noon the women will be divided among the six big mess halls used by the 3,000 boys in training and will have lunch with them. A special parade will be reviewed by the women late Monday afternoon. The Chamber of Commerce of Plattsburg will entertain the visiting women Monday night at a banquet.

The district chairmen coming to Plattsburg are: Mrs. William Brown McInerney, New York city; Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, Cornell University; Miss Rose Van Rensselaer, Cornell University; Mrs. Percy Pennington, Texas; Mrs. Raymond Brown, New York city; Mrs. Arthur Williams, Clayton; Miss Mary Cahoon, Ausable Forks; Mrs. Rufus Sisson, Potsdam; Mrs. Sherman Clark, Rochester; Mrs. Russell Headley, Albany; Mrs. William H. Purdy, Mount Vernon; Mrs. Brodie G. Higley, New York city; Mrs. Charles J. Peeder, Carthage; Mrs. Hyman Roosa, Kingston; Mrs. Ruth Farman, New York city; Mrs. Peter Miller, Fairport; Mrs. Russell Meyer, Schenectady; Mrs. E. C. Whitmyer, Schenectady; Mrs. H. C. Coe, New York city; Mrs. Frank P. Betts, Pulaski; Mrs. Edward Lyman Bill, New Rochelle; Mrs. Preston Paris, Hudson Falls; Mrs. Arden L. Norton, Cobleskill; Mrs. Allen H. Moore, Albany; Mrs. F. J. THE SHAWL'S GESTURE TOWARD ROMANCE

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

It is the custom for fashion, in its march of progress, to go backward—for ideas. Most things which are ultra-modern are old as the everlasting hills. Imagine expecting any late Victorian to believe that the shawl was going to be the last word in evening wraps. That the choice should fall on woolen shawls seemed beyond all possibilities.

Once the spotlight of fashion was focused on central Europe it revealed so much which was of immense value that not even half of its beauties have been exhausted. Lovely things were revealed in motif and coloring, and the peasant proved as valuable as the princess—for inspiration.

Even the small, square shawls, worn by peasantry, have found response among the grande dames of this day and generation. Lately, it was the magnificent embroidered Spanish manton which dazzled us with its splendor, and in its wake came Russian shawls which have paved the way for shawls of other nations.

Among the newer and more striking ones are the Roman and Bohemian striped ones which are of soft wool instead of the more usual silk and crepe. Such effects are not for the shy, shrieking violet, but there are squares of plain crepe deeply fringed or bordered with lace for her, or the lovely net shawls with embroidery in pastel or deeper coloring.

Such a shawl was made last season for the Queen of Spain, and has been copied for lesser lights, not only in shawl but scarf formation. Perhaps your attic can produce a shawl from grandma's day—most any kind will do.

Curb Billboards Blocking View

Clear vision of the roadway and preservation of national scenery are the two factors which should guide the location of all billboards, in the opinion of George M. Graham, chairman of the traffic planning and safety committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in commenting on the effect of outdoor advertising on the well-being of the motoring public.

"Notable improvement has been made in outdoor advertising during the past few years," said Mr. Graham. "The bulletin of high artistic value and honest merchandising policy which have been erected in the front of unsightly city lots are a public benefit."

"Every field of effort has its limitations, however, and clear vision of the roadway, plus a regard for natural scenery, should be fundamental factors in the location of billboard sites."

"A board which obstructs a curve or a cross road, or which mars an attractive view, is a public detriment."

"The multiplication of motor traffic tenfold in ten years has greatly increased the value of the highway as an advertising medium."

"The value of the attention of the motoring public, however, brings with it a responsibility. The advertiser must consider not only the effect of his advertisement, but also how it affects the enjoyment and safety of the traveling public."

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

EIGHT HOUR DAY.

The first demand of labor unions for an eight-hour working day was made at a convention held in Baltimore 58 years ago today August 21, 1866. This convention also marked the first attempt to organize a National federation of the various trades unions, national and international, then existing in the United States and Canada. One hundred delegates were present representing 60 organizations.

The second convention was held at Chicago in 1867. The National Labor Union after meetings held at Boston, Philadelphia and Columbus, went out of existence in 1874, but at an industrial congress held at Rochester in that year the new movement was revived under other names.

In 1881 the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions was launched, and out of this grew the powerful American Federation of Labor.

PARROT AND LION.

It was on August 21, 1103 that Abdul Iba Ali was elected Sultan of Eastern Africa by the following stratagem.

Having trained a parrot and a lion he assembled the chiefs in his tent, and urged upon them the naming of a ruler of their growing Empire. In the midst of their deliberations the parrot perched himself upon one of the poles of the tent and pronounced distinctly "Victory and power to the lot of the Khalifa Adum, Commander of the Faithful."

The lion then made his way through the assembly, licked his hand and lay down at his feet. Deeply impressed with this wonder, and the manifest interference of the Heavens, the simple chiefs at once proclaimed him their Sultan.

ST. ETHELREDA.

Was born in the early part of the seventh century. Her mother and three sisters had devoted themselves to the church—they are all numbered among the Saints—and the young woman, too, had decided to give herself to religion exclusively. Her parents, however, despite her protests, compelled her to marry Tonbereht, a noble of the Mercian Kingdom. She lived with him as a virgin for three years, it is said and on his death, she retired to the Isle of Ely, intending to enter holy orders. The powerful king of Northumbria, however, desired her in marriage, and she consented to become his wife, but in name only.

After twelve years she retired with her husband's consent to Coldingham Abbey and received the veil from St. Wilfred.

Her husband, regretting having released her, came to bring her back by force, but she took refuge on a headland on the coast near Coldingham, where it is asserted that a miracle saved her, for the water gathered around her place of refuge. She returned to Ely in 672, where she died seven years later.

And now full size balloon tires are standard equipment. Do not confuse with "semi-balloon" types. Hudson's are genuine, full size balloon tires—33"x6.20". Compare the difference.

Hudson has not simply "added balloon tires." Both running and steering gear have been especially designed to compensate for the radical differences balloon tires bring.

The result is the easiest

LATEST NEWS OF NEW YORK STATE FARM ORGANIZATIONS

Prepared for This Paper by the New York State Farm Bureau Federation, Ithaca, N. Y.

UNDERWOOD ATTENDS CONFERENCE OF NEW GRAIN MARKETING COMPANY

"How does the mammoth new grain co-operative, formed largely through the agency of the American Farm Bureau Federation, affect the farmers of the east?" With this question in mind, E. V. Underwood, secretary of the N. Y. State farm bureau federation attended last week a conference in Chicago where farmer representatives from all over the country met to look over the new Grain Marketing Company. Mr. Underwood found that while definite plans have not been worked out, President Gray Silver will probably soon have a plan whereby farmers' organizations buying grain from the Grain Marketing Company may be able to participate in patronage dividends.

Some astonishing figures were presented at the conference as to the dollars and cents value of the new co-operative to grain growing farmers. It was pointed out that a saving of $3,000,000 will be made by doing away with duplicating offices, leased wires, and other machinery. It is estimated that 50 a bushel will be saved in the handling of grain; if grain producers use the organization to capacity there will be a total saving of $75,000,000 to the producers in one year on wheat and corn. There is another possible saving of $5,000,000 on grains other than wheat and corn.

DAIRYMEN'S LEAGUE BEGINS DISTRIBUTION OF CERTIFICATES

The Dairymen's League Co-operative Association recently began mailing the first of the fifty-two thousand certificates of indebtedness of the association covering deductions for the fiscal year which ended March 31. It will take from six weeks to two months to complete the mailing, according to the Dairymen's League News, as the work will be handled by the regular staff in addition to their daily work.

The certificates will be mailed out in groups corresponding to the banks with which the association is doing business. The total amount in dollars of this series of certificates, which is known as "Series C" is $2,537,319. All certificates will be issued in multiples of one dollar; whatever balance in cents is due will be added to the thirteenth check.

G. L. F. REPORTS GOOD SURPLUS AFTER DIVIDEND PAYMENT

At the August meeting of the board of directors of the G. L. F. Exchange Robert E. Dame, certified public accountant, presented a report covering the first six months of 1924 which showed that the gross business through the Exchange during that period, had totaled $3,717,105.24; that a $45,000 cash dividend had been dispersed; and that there remained a surplus of approximately $52,000. The cash dividend was paid in June to 35,000 farmer shareholders in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

The G. L. F. Exchange is now the biggest and most successful farmers co-operative buying organization in this country. According to H. E. Babcock, general manager of the Exchange, co-operative buying is so closely linked with co-operative selling as to be almost inseparable. Both, he says, contribute to the farmers net income.

PRESIDENT ASKED TO APPOINT COMMISSION TO STUDY FARM NEEDS

The American Council of Agriculture recently sent a message to President Coolidge petitioning the appointment by the Secretary of Agriculture of "an extraordinary commission" to study the basic needs of agriculture. The message states the current increases in prices of farm products is only temporary, that the fundamental causes of agricultural depression have not been removed, and message recommends that definite remedial legislation be enacted at the coming session of Congress.

Through the Glad Eyes of a Woman

By JANE DOE

THEY LOVED BECAUSE—

SHE offered to darn all his socks every week, even though she hated darning.

He took her arm and piloted her across streets that any chicken could have ventured without any danger whatsoever.

She wanted to marry him right away without waiting till he got a better position.

He never looked twice at any other pretty girl and preferred her every-day conversation to the most scintillating wit.

She was horribly upset when he sneezed more than three times.

He always gave a sigh of relief when they were left alone, even if they said nothing for a whole hour.

She couldn't eat any breakfast if there wasn't a letter from him.

He talked over everything with her and made her realize she wasn't to be a mere cypher in his life, but a life partner.

She was always messing about in the kitchen making him dainty dishes.

He didn't talk all his love, but tried to live it.

She carried his photo in her wrist watch, one in her pocketbook, had another in her bedroom and was peeved because the family said that was more than plenty and wouldn't have him in the parlor as well.

He saw in her the one woman of his life, and having seen told her so and then proceeded to make himself the one man of her life.

She snubbed us when we pointed out he was by no means perfect, and told us that she loved him because he was himself; not because of his virtues, which, of course, settled it.

AND THAT'S WHY THEY ARE BOTH LOOKING FORWARD TO A HAPPY-FOR-EVER-AFTER KIND OF MARRIAGE.

A FOUR-BASE BLOW

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I THOUGHT OF all the things that come

To man to make him merrisome, And gold is good, and fame is fine, And praise is sweet, and love divine; But, for a joy to make a man A whirling dervish, nothing can Excepting one, and that is this, The very altitude of bliss, Pure stuff, A.I. yard wide, all wool— A home run with the bases full.

The team's behind, say 4 to 1, The game is very nearly done, The ninth, two down. A crack is heard, And someone singles over third! A grounder's all the next can do; The shortstop lets it trickle through! Two down, two on! What's all the talk?

Two strikes, three balls. Hooray, a walk! Now grandstand, bleachers, hear 'em pull— "A home run with the bases full!"

We talk about the brotherhood of man. All very well and good. But only then beyond a doubt I've ever seen it carried out. I've seen a minister embrace

A man who tended bar some place, I've seen some haughty social dame Who let a drummer do the same, All leveled by (silk, cotton, wool) A home run with the bases full.

TOOTHsome DISHES

A DELICIOUS dessert which will delight the children is:

Figs and Lemon Jelly Custard. Pour boiling water over a pound of figs and boil rapidly until the figs are tender. Add one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and simmer to form a pulp. Set aside to chill. Soften a package of lemon gelatin or prepare the gelatin and lemon juice, if preferred, adding sugar to taste. Pour into a pan to make a sheet about three-fourths of an inch thick. When chilled, cut into cubes. Set the figs with the syrup in sherbet cups, arrange around them cubes of jelly and pour over all a cold cooked custard.

Caramel Marshmallow Parfait. Cut twenty marshmallows into four pieces each; add one-third of a cupful of maraschino cherries cut into thin slices; cover with the syrup and let them stand for an hour. Cook two-thirds of a cupful of sugar to a caramel, adding two-thirds of a cupful of water; cook until the caramel is well-melted and add two tablespoonsful of sugar; pour, when dissolved and still hot, over a stiffly-beaten egg; beat until cold. Fold in the marshmallows and cherries and one and one-half cupfuls of cream, beaten stiff. Turn into a melon mold, cover with paper and pack in ice and salt, using equal measures. Let stand for three hours.

Scotch Shortbread.

Beat one cupful of butter to a cream; add one-half cupful of light brown sugar, then work in four cupfuls of pastry flour. If the flour is warmed slightly it will work better. Form the mixture into cakes seven inches in diameter. Prick with a fork and crimp the edges with the thumb and finger. Sprinkle the top with chopped cherries, caraway candies or preserved citron. Bake in a slow oven.

CULTIVATED ORCHARDS HAVE BIG ADVANTAGES.

Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Horticulturists at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station here strongly advocate cultivating the New York apple orchards during the summer and planting cover crops in the fall because of the decided advantages of this practice over a permanent sod for most of New York fruit districts as revealed by long-continued experiments and by personal observation throughout the state. Orchardists who question the merits of clean cultivation are urged to cultivate a small part of their plantings and to note the almost immediate response of the trees in increased vigor and productivity.

In one of the station experiments, the average yield for a 10-year period from an orchard left in sod was 69.16 barrels per acre as compared with 116.8 barrels per acre from an orchard which was cultivated during the same 10-year period. Every means for measuring the growth and vigor of the trees in orchards left in sod and those which were cultivated showed a decided increase for the cultivated orchard, say the station specialists.

Saves Soil Moisture. "The beneficial effects of cultivation may be attributed to many factors, among the most important of which is the saving in soil moisture which would otherwise be utilized by the sod, and the elimination of the competition between the trees and the sod for the plant food supply of the soil," say the station fruitmen. "It is a well known fact that nursery stock can be successfully grown only under the most intensive cultivation; and it stands to reason that when placed in the orchard, the trees should not be subjected to radically different methods of handling. Also, insect pests and diseases may be more readily controlled in cultivated orchards."

When Sod is Destructive. "Although tillage is undoubtedly the best method of caring for the majority of apple orchards in New York, there are particular situations, soils and economic conditions under which it may be advantageous to maintain the orchard in sod. Plantings located on steep hillsides where the soil would wash badly under tillage or on rocky land which is difficult to till should probably be kept in sod. On orchard soils of considerable depth which do not suffer from summer drought, a sod may be maintained without serious injury; but on the shallow soils which prevail in most New York fruit districts, a sod will prove decidedly harmful to the trees. The cost of tillage is much more than that of maintaining a sod, although the net returns are greater. Local conditions may make it necessary, however, to depend on a larger acreage in sod to balance the greater productivity under tillage."

“Perfect Crime” Wave in Chicago

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, Aug. 12.—The psychologists and psychiatrists who have been poking around in the mental recesses of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, in an effort to find a scientific explanation of the Franks crime, had a new problem on their hands today. It might be put like this: “What has been the influence of the Leopold-Loeb case on the young American mind?”

Two more boys, one 19, the other 11, were in the custody of the police today for writing an extortion letter to a Leopold to Jacob Franks, father of Bobby Franks. This makes a total of five boys, all in their teens or below, who have been arrested since “Dicky” and “Babe,” the 19 years old college prodigies coolly murdered the Franks boy in a sophomore effort to commit the “perfect crime.”

The new arrests were Fielding Smith, 19, and his “kid brother,” Earl, 11. They joined in the county jail Walter Derus, Walter Boreya and Ignatius Clombar, who were arrested some weeks ago after their imaginations had been fired by the Leopold-Loeb case.

The two brothers wrote to Jacob Franks and demanded $8,000 “in old bills, 2’s and 5’s,” and failure to deliver was to be followed, the letter said, by the kidnapping of Mrs. Franks and her small daughter, Josephine. Directions were given that the money was to be thrown from the elevated tracks at a given place. Two baking powder cans were used as decoys. Eleven year old Earl was nabbed by two detectives just as he recovered the supposed loot and was streaking it away to where his older brother was waiting for him.

They wrote three letters in all to Franks. Fielding supplied the chirography and the stamps and little Earl did the mailing and was to do the collecting.

Of the five boys arrested, Clombar and Boreya are held to the grand jury under heavy bond. Fielding probably will join them. Walter Derus, who is only 16, was held over to the juvenile court, where he shortly will be joined by 11 year old Earl. The Smith boys’ father is a retired minister.

Meanwhile in Judge Caverly’s criminal court room today the state continued to demand that Loeb and Leopold swing for the kidnapping and slaying of Bobby Franks. The state was in the third day of its plea that a sanguinary example be set for the criminal minded by sending “Dicky” and “Babe” to the gallows.

Battery A Wants Recruits

Creditable Military Organization Still Has Place for 40 Men—Plans and Prizes for Military Athletic League.

Since the return home from camp the eyes of Captain E. L. Cashin, commanding officer of Battery A, 156th Field Artillery, turn once more to recruiting the battery to the full peace strength. The battery has now a total of seventy-one members on its rolls. The maximum peace strength of the battery is one hundred and fourteen men. It is a credit to Kingston to be able to have an artillery organization and especially one that shows credit at all times.

This city has been picked out of many as the headquarters of the first battalion and also has the honor of being the only city to support two artillery batteries. Up to the present date Kingston has been able to be on the top for all undertakings and a strong appeal is being made to help keep Kingston on the top by being able to recruit all the batteries stationed here as quickly as possible.

The members of the New York National Guard are banded together for a common purpose. That purpose is two fold: first, to improve themselves individually, that they may become better soldiers and therefore, better citizens, and second, to train collectively that their organization may be efficient and ready for war and any other emergency it may be called upon to act. Banded together, they form one unit of a larger team, the success of which depends upon the efficiency, cooperation and teamwork of the various units or smaller teams composing it.

Their mission is to deport themselves and to accomplish work in such a manner as to enable their own team and the next higher team to perform efficiently every duty that may be required in peace and in war. The best way to accomplish this mission is by following the precepts which follow. They are called the “Precepts of a Soldier,” and were adopted by Brigadier General Richmond P. Davis, Commandant of the Coast Artillery School at Fort Monroe, Virginia, since 1291.

Be loyal ever. Loyalty is the keystone of the military arch. Salute with a gleam in your eye and a snap in your motions, showing that you take pride in the military appearance of your organization and in yourself as a soldier.

Be cheerful always. Whatever comes meet it with a smile. The grumbler is a man to be shunned. Never say “No” when asked if you can accomplish something—the ways and means may not be apparent but you can find them. Be firm and just. Human nature always responds to fairness and firmness.

Be courteous always. Courtesy is a foundation stone of both military and civil life. Never discuss nor question orders. Execute them to the best of your ability, and with the spirit of accomplishment. Never explain unless directed to do so. If corrected say “Yes, Sir” and conform to instructions.

Live in peace and charity with the other members of your command. Duty first, self afterwards. He who concentrates on self will never be a soldier.

Make yourself appreciate subconsciously the foregoing precepts. Unless you do and live up to them you are not a soldier.

The foregoing precepts have been adopted for the purpose of making it more pleasant when little disagreements arise and if followed closely will save everyone a lot of unnecessary sorrow.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK TO BE SHOWN.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Geneva, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The importance of milk in the human diet and ways and means of utilizing milk and milk products for food are to be depicted by a striking exhibit at the state fair at Syracuse the week of September 8, under the joint direction of officials from the state experiment station here, the department of farms and markets at Albany, and the College of Agriculture at Ithaca, according to a statement issued today by those directing the display. As the central feature of the exhibit, it is planned to erect a miniature Niagara Falls over which will flow continuously a great volume of milk which will then flow into miniature milk factories. Out of these factories will come finished dairy products, such as butter, cheese, condensed milk, etc.

FIRST FREIGHT AIRPLANE A SUCCESS.
The Remington-Burnell airplane, driven by two motors, has completed its first successful tests at Mitchell Field, Long Island, N. Y. The airplane, entirely of metal, is the first freight airplane built, and is capable of carrying three tons of cargo at ninety miles an hour.

DAIRMEN SHOULD SCAN FEED MARKET
Feed prices, says H. A. Hopper of the state college of agriculture at Ithaca, are apt to remain at the present level or go higher during the coming season. Reasons for this are that labor and freight rates are still high and that the 1924 corn estimate is reported to be about one-fifth less than last year's crop.

On the other hand, Professor Hopper points out, a good wheat crop with renewed activity in milling flour may produce enough wheat by products to depress the market, so that it is extremely difficult this year to predict with any degree of certainty winter prices of feeds.

The dairyman making plans for his winter production must include some grain, Professor Hopper says, but with feed dealers and jobbers everywhere cautious and in the dark concerning the recent rise in feed stuffs, the best that can be done is to follow the price movements, confer frequently with the dealer, and buy for cash.

Family Watch
A man in St. Louis has a watch on which the numerals of the face have been replaced with tiny photographs of the members of his family. He himself is 1 o'clock, his wife is 2 o'clock, his oldest child is 3 o'clock, and the other figures are covered by the pictures of the remainder of his ten children, 12 o'clock being the baby of the family.

Prince Dimitri, 23, a nephew of the late Czar of Russia, is working as an assistant to the manager of the foreign exchange department of the National American Bank, in New York City. He will remain in the business. Asked if he would take American citizenship, he said he would remain a Russian always, and that some day he would return to Russia, but not while the Bolsheviks are in control.

No remedy cures all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from various troubles when the real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. There is one universally known tonic that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.

DEFECTIVE EYES MEAN HUGE LOSS

Poor Vision of School Pupils Costs Taxpayers Annually $130,000,000.

New York—Defective eyesight in public schools is costing the taxpayers of the nation at least $130,000,000 annually. It is asserted by the Eyeglass Conservation Council of America, which, in a statement sent to directors of summer schools throughout the country, urges organized conservation of vision as a social and economic need.

Warning that poor eyesight is a prolific source of retardation, the council makes public the results of investigations showing that a large proportion of backward children have visual defects.

Accompanying the statement is a report revealing that heavy moral and financial losses arise from this evil. Approximately 25 per cent of all school children in the United States, the council finds, are retarded in their studies and fully one-third of this retardation is conservatively estimated as due to defective vision.

If this is a correct estimate there are at least 2,000,000 school children in the United States one or more years behind in their studies because of defective vision, says the council's report, continuing:

"According to the United States bureau of education the cost of public elementary and secondary education for the entire United States averaged in 1920 $24.16 per pupil per year. If each one of the 2,000,000 retarded children in the United States, as estimated, was forced to drop back only one year the cost would be $390,000,000."

"The public school system spends this amount each year in order that these children may have one or more years longer to complete their education. At least one-third of this amount, or $130,000,000, is lost annually because the eyesight of the children is neglected."

"This estimated cost is low, for the average backward pupil is retarded more than one year. Studies made in two cities of 5,315 retarded pupils show a total of 12,970 school years lost, making an average much in excess of two years for each retarded pupil."

"Furthermore, the estimate does not represent the total loss to the child and to the state when consideration is given to the future inefficiency, lowered earning power and less competent service of the individual as an economic unit of society."

Leads to Other Troubles.
John J. Tipton, United States commissioner of education and a member of the board of counselors of the eyeglass council, is quoted as asserting, after a careful review of the situation, that "one of the greatest disturbing factors in measuring the effects of defective vision upon retardation is the fact that faulty eyesight invariably leads to other troubles, and the effect of these is not attributed to defective vision."

The council's statement to summer-school directors, signed by Guy A. Henry of New York, general director, says that "a large percentage of the pupils attending summer schools are obliged to do so merely because they have not kept up with their classes."

In the report disclosing waste the relation between sound vision and school progress is indicated. "Defective vision is responsible for much of the retardation in school progress which exists in the educational institutions of the country," says the report.

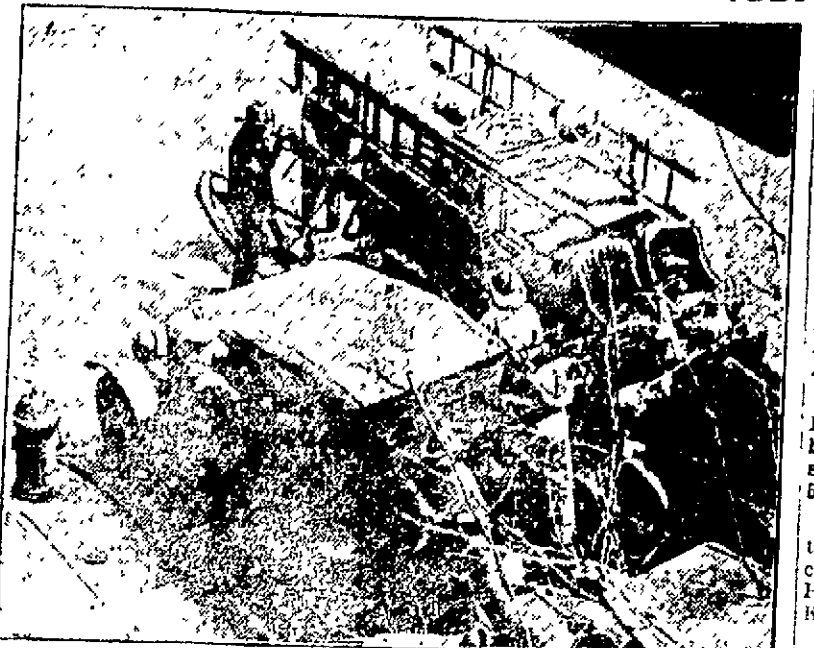

"Investigations of 23,607 public school children with defective vision show that of this group an average of 67 per cent were retarded in their studies one or more years. This is almost three times as high as the retardation of groups when not classified according to eyesight. In another group of 32,050 pupils of which retardation investigations were made without segregating or giving consideration to condition of eyes, the proportion of those retarded in their studies averaged 24 per cent."

Large Number Backward.
Of 7,519 school children found with defective vision in the public school eye clinic of one of our large cities 72 per cent were backward in their studies. An examination of 2,135 rural school children in a midwestern state disclosed that of those retarded nearly 60 per cent had visual defects, according to the council.

"The correction of visual defects results in a marked improvement in school progress," the report continues. "The records of 20,000 cases sent to a public school eye clinic for correction of refractive errors show that from 20 to 70 per cent of the children were classified as backward, mentally deficient, stupid or habitually left back. The careful follow-up system proved that after their defective vision had been corrected 70 to 80 per cent of these children progressed and took their place in the class with the normal average child. The reason the remaining 20 to 30 per cent did not progress was because their retardation was due to causes other than defective vision."

The proportion of retardation in another group, all with visual defects, was found to be 85.4 per cent. One year later, after the defective eyes had been corrected by glasses, only 17 per cent of these corrected children continued to be backward in their studies."

IMPORTANT POINT FOR MOTORISTS TO OBEY

Never park a car near a fireplug or hydrant. This is one of the most important of all traffic regulations and should be observed by all motorists everywhere. Precious minutes are lost by the firemen in removing the car when they are called out to fight a blaze.

TREAT YOUR CAR WITH AFFECTION

Fact That It Is Inanimate Thing Is Lost Sight of by Considerate Owner.

By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.
Man's tendency to ascribe a personality to his automobile is in no way surprising. It is just a natural outgrowth of his innate love of pets.

Where he used to have a horse as a companion for his play hours he now bestows the affection of a master upon his motorcar. Even his dog must share the petting with the sleek, speed-eating, gasoline quadruped.

So man has come to give his favorite car a soul and a name. The fact that it is an inanimate thing in the way of being honest and denit is lost sight of. When business or home troubles arise the man turns to the companionship of his automobile and, like Rip Van Winkle with his dog, goes into the hills. If fired a romp in the country with his mechanical pet rests him. He confides his yearnings to his car and it responds by interpreting his every mood.

Companionable Motor Pet.
And thus it naturally follows that the considerate master has the most companionable motor pet. He who quarrels with his machine gets a response that matches. Mis-treated, the car behaves as abominably as a whipped horse or a starved dog. Cared with proper care and regularly fed with water, oil, gasoline, it obeys with all the feeling of a loved one.

Even more than all this, man chooses his pets from the most efficient breeds. So, in picking an automobile, his selection falls to the one that will most readily respond to his demands for comfort, power, mileage, dependability and, at the same time, be economically kept.

And comfort means success with motor touring as well as in anything else. Comfort is the reason for the modern highway. It is not merely the smooth road but also the way the road is posted. There are lots of signs and arrows pointing the way you should go without even having to slacken speed to read them. Of course you can take maps—but of what use are these other than to tell you the statistics of the town through which you are passing? Even Mr. DeTour's card by the wayside points to future comfort—that the country is trying its darndest to keep the roads in perfect condition.

Specialize in Glowing Terms.
The open road? Gosh! It is no wonder that concerns dealing in automobiles and accessories love to specialize in glowing terms. And don't these advertisements make you want to get the old bus out into the open to set up your tent and enjoy the company of others who have heeded the glorious call of Nature?

You can just bet that they do!

Before Removing Fender— Put Kerosene on Bolts

The automobile repairer bases his charges for installing a new fender mainly on the time he spends trying to remove the old one. And the car owner will discover that the "frozen" nuts and bolts which hold the fender in place will prevent most of the difficulty encountered in this sort of work. The rule is to squirt kerosene over the fender bolts just before trying to loosen them with the screwdriver. But the rule is not always the logical way to do things. A great deal of time will be saved by giving the fender bolts a kerosene bath the night previous to the day the work is to be done. In the morning much of the rust will have been removed and the bolts will turn much easier, for the kerosene will have had ample time to do its share of the work.

A Clutch Test

A clutch can be tested for slipping by letting the engine run at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. Put the emergency brake on tight and shift the gear to high speed, then gradually engage the clutch. If the motor stalls the clutch is not slipping. If the motor continues to run, then the clutch needs attention at once.

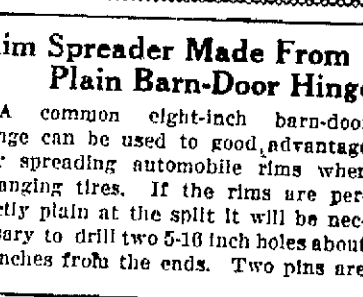

Nine Points to Check for Knocks of Motor

Knocks are always annoying to the best operators. The principal causes are:

- Lack of oil.
- Clogged radiator.
- Too rich a mixture.
- Spark advanced too far.
- Failure of fan to work properly.
- Wrong timing of ignition system.
- Spark too late, causing overheating.
- Preliminary, due to excessive carbon.
- Mechanical looseness of various kinds.

Rim Spreader Made From Plain Barn-Door Hinge

A common eight-inch barn-door hinge can be used to good advantage for spreading automobile rims when changing tires. If the rims are perfectly plain at the split it will be necessary to drill two 5-16 inch holes about 4 inches from the ends. Two pins are riveted or welded to the end of the hinge and each end is then bent as shown. The pins are inserted into the holes drilled in the rim and the hinge is pushed down with the foot, thus spreading the rim. If there are studs on the rim, the hinge can be used without pins, by simply butting the ends against the studs, notching the ends if necessary to prevent the hinge from slipping.—Frank N. Cookley, Buffalo, N. Y., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Points for Motorist to Watch on Slippery Days

To prevent skidding, a number of points should be observed in both operation and care of a car. Before venturing out in slippery streets with a car the engine should be in smooth running order, the clutch should disengage easily and freely and engage without suddenly grabbing. The brakes should be adjusted so that they take hold sufficiently to stop the car, but will not lock the wheels except when additional pressure is exerted. They should also take hold evenly at both wheels, because if they do not a sure swerve of the machine to the side of the tightest brake will result. A car which does not have both front and rear wheels in line will not efficiently hold the road in wet weather, especially when brakes are applied. This latter trouble may be due to sprung axles, front or rear; rear axle housing out of true or a sprung frame.

Valve Cap Is Valuable to Prevent Dirt Leaks

Motorists are warned not to err by taking it for granted that it makes little difference whether a cap is used on the tire valve and when a cap is lost to proceed without one. This idea is entirely erroneous, and motorists who do not use the valve cap can expect trouble.

When the cap is not used there is every probability that sand and dirt will work down into the valve and ultimately produce a leak. While a tire remains inflated this dirt in some cases may do no harm, but when a new inflation is made the pump drives the dirt down into the valve and makes an air-tight connection almost impossible.

Noiseless Auto Bodies

Automobile bodies made from a fabric in France eliminate noises common to those manufactured from metal and can be built for only about 10 per cent the cost of metal touring cars.

Clocks and Seams

The ornamental clock on stockings was in the beginning a sort of camouflage. When stockings were made of cloth, the seams where the clocks now appear. The clocks were invented to hide the seams.

KINGSTON MAN FAILED TO PAY DAMAGES

Failure to pay for repairs to the car of Gus McDonough, of Matamoras, following an accident early in the month on the mountain caused the arrest of J. M. Messina in Kingston on Tuesday. He will be arraigned before Justice Morrison.

McDonough's car was repaired by Lacy & Norton in this village and Messina agreed to pay the bill of $65. Then he changed his mind and Justice Morrison issued a warrant. Chief Ryan and Officer John Fitzsimmons went to Kingston but did not find him home and the warrant was served by an officer there. Messina furnished $100 bail for his return here.—The Catskill Daily Mail.

KILLED BY MOTOR CAR IN CENTRAL PARK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 21.—Dr. John Flanagan of Syracuse, N. Y., was knocked down and fatally injured by a motor car in Central Park today. Dr. Flanagan was walking to the home of friends and because of the rain was carrying an umbrella which obstructed his view. The car, driven by Seymour E. Leturey of New Rochelle, swerved in an attempt to avoid hitting him but could not stop. Dr. Flanagan was taken to Roosevelt Hospital in Leturey's car but died of a fractured skull. Police said the accident was unavoidable.

Ulster Garden Club.
The Ulster Garden Club met at the house of Mrs. James E. Winston in Saugerties on Tuesday, August 19th. A prize of a beautiful blue vase was won by Mrs. Winston for the best display of annuals. Her group of annual larkspur was a lovely mass of lavender, purple and pink arranged in a large brass container.

The subject for the day was "What is a True Perennial in This Locality?" The discussion was general, the members giving individual experiences in raising perennials. The fact that certain plants are perennials in some climates, biennials in others, and sometimes even annuals in less favorable environment. Certain old fashioned stand-bys like hardy delphinium, were shown by some of the best gardeners to have run out in three or four years, while other members testified to their best bloom on plants that were ten years old.

Some very interesting experiences in the use of coal ashes were given, showing that in what appeared unfavorable conditions some perennials had made amazing development. One member had been obliged to develop a side hill garden on what had been an old ash dump. One of the most beautiful of the Saugerties gardens is now a show garden in that spot, every perennial and many of the rock plants having made an immediate and unusual growth there. Another member gave an experience this year in using an old and very hard ash path to make a border. After digging and stirring almost in vain, she gave up and planted right in the ashes. To her surprise, every plant jumped up and went to work to produce what is already a very full and perfect border of splendid bloom. The drought that proved a test of all the gardens had no effect on this planting.

There was discussion that brought out great interest, on covering these beds for the winter. Many of the members prefer not to put any covering on. Cutting stalks down to two feet in the fall, and leaving the beds bare was thought best. It was agreed that perennials to keep their vitality needed to have their seed vessels clipped off as soon as the flowers were done.

#402 Awarded Anna Sobin.

An order was filed in the Greene county clerk's office on August 18, signed by Justice Rosch awarding $100 to Anna Sobin as compensation for the time she was detained as a witness in the Rothenberg case, but deducting $100, which has been paid to her under an order previously made by Judge Staley.

After 120 Years

On July 5, 1803, Capt. Meriwether Lewis and William Clark, commissioned by President Jefferson to explore the Northwest to the Pacific, left Washington, D. C. westward bound. Two and one-half years later, on March 23, 1806, having accomplished their objective after wintering on the banks of the Columbia, they turned back they were able to recross the continent in eleven months.

A short time ago one man climbed into his airplane on the East coast at dawn and as twilight deepened into dusk along the shore of the Pacific he swung down through the mist and landed across the field to a stop. The time elapsed on his journey, made without a mishap, is measured not in days and months and years, but in hours, minutes and seconds. The transcontinental trip that took Lewis and Clark more than two years to cover, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, army flyer, accomplished in 18 hours, 16 minutes flying time. His average speed was 153.17 miles an hour.—From the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Smoke Screen a Menace

The smoke screen, long used as a protective device for battleships, now becomes a menace to them, according to authorities of the united air service. A screen spread above a fleet of battleships by special smoke-emitters attached to fast small planes makes it impossible for the approach of the aerial bomb fleet to be observed. This enables the attacking planes to fly low, when, with sensitive flinders, they pick up the doomed battleship by sound, adjust their aim and loose the bomb in safety except for the possibility of a chance shot fired blindly against the pall of smoke by the anti-aircraft guns on the ship below.

It is a strange thing to find the screen employed as a weapon of offense against the very craft which originally produced it as a defensive measure.

Are Once Labeled Poison

Years ago in the merry days of the English tavern there was a turmoil among radicals over the "poisoning" of the ale drunk by the common people. The trouble was caused when some one learned that in making ale sulphuric acid, made from Spanish pyrites, was used and that this contained arsenic. It was a tempest in a teapot, however, because it would have taken five barrels of ale to contain enough arsenic to hurt one individual.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
By New York, Aug. 21.—Only fractional declines occurred in prices of active industrial stocks at the opening of the market today. Many of them were ready, before the end of the first hour, to resume the forward movement. The fundamental strength of the market as a whole, as exhibited in the attainment of a new high price level for the "averages," has brought fresh buying into the list, particularly in stocks which have not yet joined the upward movement.

Oil stocks were steady in the face of further cuts in crude oil prices. Profit taking and short selling of high priced industrials was indulged in the first hour, as a result of which Mack Trucks, American Can, U. S. Steel and other star performers declined a point or more on fairly heavy selling. In many cases, however, the tables were soon turned in favor of higher prices.

Copper and shipping stocks maintained a firm tone. Marine preferred going into a new high around 43 1/2 and American International, gaining more than a point at 29 1/2.

Good buying was seen in the equipment stocks in the second hour as Baldwin led the way to higher prices with a lead of nearly two points above the previous close. American Locomotive gained a point at 83 and American Car and Foundry and Fullman were strong. Universal Pipe and Radiator at 18 1/2, was up two points from yesterday and 5 1/2 above the low of last week.

Herriot Gives Credit to Dawes

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 21.—"The London conference was only a beginning, but it is the beginning of real peace in Europe," Premier Herriot declared in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

This statement was received with much applause.

"You will observe," continued the Premier, "we have given a large part of the work to Americans in our control organization. We have done so intentionally. The regime upon which the Dawes plan depends must endure."

Herriot ended his speech at 4:20 o'clock after having spoken an hour and five minutes. He was applauded as he sat down.

Deaf No Longer Helpless

There were many school graduation exercises this season but one of the most novel was that of Gallaudet college at Washington. Here five attractive girls—three of them with bobbed hair—and 14 young men received M. A. A. B. and B. S. degrees. Not one of them can hear. Three orations, delivered orally, were translated into the sign language.

"People look upon the deaf with sympathy," said Nathan Zimble. "They never think that there is happiness among us. There was a time when to be deaf meant being a charge and a nuisance. But all that has changed. Now we are able to take care of ourselves. There are worse things than being deaf. If we were blind or crippled there would be ground for sympathy," William Griffin said. "The real deaf are not beggars," he insisted.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Railroads of the World

Totalling approximately 750,000 miles, according to figures prepared by the National City Bank of New York, the world's railroads, if placed in a single line, would reach to the moon and back and encircle the globe nearly 11 times. Popular Mechanics Magazine states. This amount represents an increase of 250,000 miles since 1900. Nearly all of the mileage has been built in the last 74 years or less. In 1850, the world boasted only 25,000 miles of lines, less than is owned now by a single great system in the United States. About 85 per cent of the railroads are under government ownership. It is estimated. Conditions of government control and operation vary in different countries, and in the United States, Great Britain and Spain practically all the lines are under private ownership.

Colonials Play at
N. Adams Today

The game which was scheduled for Wednesday between the Colonials and Ticonderoga at Ticonderoga was called off on account of rain.

This afternoon the Colonials are scheduled to play the Windsor Club at North Adams. The Colonials have already taken three games from this club this season and are anxious to make it four this afternoon. Hummel will very likely do the hurrying for the local club today.
Friday afternoon the Colonials play Chapple Johnson's Stars at Amsterdam. Warhop will probably be in the box for the Schrickelmen.

TAGGING ALL BASES
IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES.

The Dodgers, with Bill Doak in the box, won their third straight game from the Pirates, 3 to 2, in eleven innings. Brooklyn is now in third place, only two games behind Pittsburgh.

The lowly Braves shoved the Braves down the ladder by taking both ends of a double header, 2 to 1 and 5 to 0. Casey Stengel accounted for five runs as Genewich and Barnes held the Bruins safe.

The Cardinals beat the Phillies twice, 3 to 1 and 13 to 10. Hornsby got six hits.

In the only American League game played, the Red Sox nosed out the Indians, 5 to 4.

BATTING SIKI
SAID "I QUIT"

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Lorain, Ohio, Aug. 21.—Battling Siki, the Senegalese, former light heavyweight champion of the world,
quit in the eighth round of his scheduled ten round bout with Mike Conroy, of Rochester, N. Y., here last night.

Conroy was getting the better of the fight, with the main go of the tornado relief fund show, when Siki announced "I quit."

"I am getting nothing for this,"
Siki shouted across the ropes to his new wife.

The show was a failure, and promoters face a $1,200 deficit.

Seeking Successor to Dundee.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 21.—A featherweight elimination tournament was being considered today to find a successor to Johnny Dundee, who has given up his world's title. Dundee said he could not make the weight limit of 126 pounds.

"Kid" Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., was mentioned in boxing circles today
as Dundee's probable successor. Dundee will continue to fight as a light weight and junior lightweight boxer.

Stengel's Wise Crack
Held Hecklers Back

Casey Stengel gets off a wise crack once in a while which holds the hecklers down. When the Braves were playing in Pittsburgh the other day, the fans got after Casey while he was on his way to the bench. It so happened that the Braves were leading by the score of 6 to 2, with little chance of the Pirates catching up.
With a great sweep of his arms for silence the little group which had been raising Stengel, calling him grandpa, New York cast-off, etc., was brought to an immediate silence.
"Yes, folks, I'm growing old,
and my eyes are going back on me," said Casey. "I can scarcely see the score board. Now, won't some kind person up there tell me what the score is."
They had more respect for the outfielder after that.

SISLER SAYS HIS EYES ABOUT WELL

Hopes Impaired Vision Will Become Normal.

Baseball fans generally throughout the country have noted with satisfaction this season the work of Manager
George H. Sisler of the St. Louis Browns, and the hope is now entertained that eventually his impaired
vision will become normal.
Voted the most valuable player in the American league during the 1922
season, Sisler was stricken with infla-enza in February, 1923, and his condition was aggravated by sinus trouble and tonsillitis, resulting in impaired vision which caused his retirement from the game for the 1923 season.
For a time it was feared that his baseball days were over, but Sisler gave his eyes a careful, patient course of treatment and rest.
With the opening of the 1924 season Sisler assumed his regular position at first base in addition to managing the Browns. He admits that the defect in his vision has not entirely disappeared, but with his eyes constantly improving he is optimistic that his sight will gradually return to normal.

Manager George Sisler.

The defect, he declares, hampers him in batting, but its effect upon his fielding is negligible.
Although Sisler has been batting this season below his usual average he attributes this to periodical slumps which all ball players experience.

Sport Notes

Washington will be the scene of a military polo tournament in September.

It will soon be a question of getting in the first story about the football prospects.

As many world records were broken
at the Olympic games as at an average swimming meet.

Alfred M. Wilson, of Minneapolis, has been elected captain of the Yale
crew for next season.

Perkins, a one-armed member of the Indian Hill Golf club of Illinois, has a hole-in-one to his credit.

If our athletes are not careful other nations will lose interest and fail to send competitors to the Olympic games.

If the principal object of a vacation is change, it's a wonder some of our incurable golfers don't work on holidays.

You get another idea of what higher education means from the fact that a good varsity football coach receives a bigger salary than the president of the university.

The Cincinnati Reds are still chuck-ling over an incident Sammy Bohne was responsible for during the recent series in Philadelphia. "Imp" Begley,
the little fellow who held down short
for the team while most of the regulars were on the hospital list, came near getting on a No. 13 boot as the result of it.

bearing the name of Mr. E. Normus, supposedly a California friend. "Imp" likes to meet anybody who comes from that province and immediately showed the card to Bohne. Sammy, finding the joke was going over big,
pointed out a huge, dignified, but sour-faced man who was sitting in the far corner of the corridor.

"That's the man that asked for you over there," chirped Bohne.

Begley hastened over to the portly individual and with his face abeam asked: "Are you Mr. E. Normus?"

The big fellow, thoroughly angered, raised himself laboriously from his comfortable chair and with a growl
swung a right which just missed
"Imp." It was some time before Begley could see the joke.

British National Flag

The "Union Jack," the national flag of Great Britain, came into being in 1801. It is an amalgamation of the banners of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick, representing the three united kingdoms.

Old Cy Young Holds
Major League Record

Denton T. (Cy) Young, holds
the major league record for consecutive shutout innings. He pitched 45 innings in a row in which opposing teams did not make a run.
There is another record that should be bracketed with this
one. It concerns a left-handed pitcher named Walter Leverenz, who worked for the St. Louis Americans several years ago.
Leverenz pitched 53 consecutive innings in which his team did not score a run for him. In other words, Leverenz was shut out six games in a row. And the peculiar part of it was that Leverenz pitched good ball in these games; his team simply could not hit opposing pitching
well enough to score one run.

JACK WARHOP STILL
HURLING IN BUSHES

Veteran Has Turned in 3-Hit Game This Season.

This seems to be a season out of the ordinary for veteran baseball
pitchers.
Grover Cleveland Alexander, who is getting along in years, is pitching about the best ball of his career for the Chicago Cubs, while Walter Johnson is winning frequently for Washington. Recently at College Point, L.
I. little Jack Warhop, who passed out of the big league nine years ago, shut out the South Philadelphia Hebrew team with three scattered hits.
Perhaps Johnson, Alexander and Warhop have discovered the fountain of youth. Warhop is nearing his fortieth milestone, but the followers of the College Point team are firm in their belief that the little Indian could pitch winning ball in either the National or American leagues.
"There are worse pitchers in the big league today than Warhop," said
a College Point fan. "Jack is pitching real baseball for us, and it was a treat to watch him toss the ball
against the bats of the Philadelphia players."
"Perhaps he has lost some of his speed, but he's a smart little pitcher and the other fellows don't get many good balls to hit at."
"He'll not throw the ball as fast as Dazzy Vance, but there's plenty of stuff" on every pitch and the opposing players have their own troubles trying to solve his baffling underhand curves."
Warhop has been pitching for a long while. He first went up to the big leagues with the Detroit club in 1907.

Hollis Thurston Stars

Wonders will never cease in baseball! This time last year Pitcher Hollis Thurston of the Chicago White Sox was regarded as just "so-so." Today he is one of the most effective hurriers in the American league, ranking right up with the great Walter Johnson. Thurston came to the White Sox via the waiver route from the St.
Louis Browns.

Hunger Strike

Rotarians, By Ringing in a Profes-

A number of the members of the Kingston Rotary Club found out all about the inside workings of a Boy Scout Camp on Wednesday evening
when, at the invitation of Scout Executive Henry Nesslage, they went to Camp Bevier late in the afternoon and spent the evening there.

After reaching the camp, some having reached the island by boat and others by navigating their land opportunity of making a thorough inspection of the camp. This inspection included beholding the mysteries of the Scout Museum and listening to the snake charmer tell how to pet snakes.

Following inspection a game of ball took place between the Rotary nine and the Boy Scout nine. Due to the fact that their ranks were augmented by the presence of a professional ball player from Chichester in their line up, the Rotary nine managed to hold the Boy Scout aggregation to a 4-4 score after three innings of play when the game was called on account of dinner.

The visitors were then given an example of what a Scout gets to eat at a camp. After having disposed of generous portions of roast beef,
